

I live on an island off the coast of North Carolina. We have always been severely limited, if not "cut off" completely, from normal television and radio reception. With the advent of satellite television, we are now able to receive national networks - although armed with regulations the FCC and Congress have obviously written to the broadcasters satisfaction, the selfish, greedy and all-powerful broadcast executives are able to prevent our reception of local broadcasts.

I beg the FCC not to "blow it" again when the NAB's self-serving petition 04-160 is heard. I pay for, and receive, excellent service from my satellite radio company. I will lose what little faith I have left in your bureaucracy should you continue to destroy our 1st amendment rights.
